Pro-Life Mississippi responds to U.S. Supreme Court not taking action on Texas Heartbeat Act.

Pro Life Mississippi is thrilled that the Supreme Court has not taken action to overturn the intent of Texas citizens to protect humans with a heartbeat. The Texas Heartbeat Act is now in effect, and it is having an immediate impact in protecting the preborn. The Associated Press reported that Planned Parenthood in Texas, among other abortion providers, have stopped scheduling abortions beyond six weeks from conception.

Pro Life Mississippi notes with sadness that our state will likely see an uptick in abortions committed at the state's only abortion facility, the Jackson Women's Health Organization, from women traveling across state lines to have their babies' lives terminated. Pro Life Mississippi President Laura Knight said, "We pray that our continued presence on the sidewalk at the Jackson abortion facility will help each woman to recognize the God-given value of her preborn child, and we will continue to offer support to all women considering abortion to enable them to choose life!"
